At the top of page 6 in Myers' book, there is the suggestion of a law to protect ministers against caustic criticism. I'm for that strong! but I intend to have the bill read, when it reaches President bill read, when it reaches President Harding for signing, "ministers and actors," and no one will be allowed to throw anything, such as eggs or vegetables, at actors or ministers. That will be neatly put in the bill—joker-like. The new and improved Sunday laws will be something pretty! I will give in advance a few inserts of interest: "No Sunday travel. No Fords allowed on the roads Sunday. Parents with large families may wheel the Ford into the dining room and pretend they the dining room and pretend they are out annoying people who are really going some place. Nothing but Rolls-Royces, Marmons, Packards, and their like will be allowed to run on Sundays."

This is a slight departure from the original blue laws, but not from the spirit that caused the laws to be passed. On page 38 Myers clearly tooms out that the Lord heat clearly points ou: that the Lord had blessed one class only. ployment rather than to immediately ameliorate the present situation will be the primary object of the labor conference to be held in Washington early in September.

Officials here are undetermined what procedure will be followed, but it has been decided, it is reported, to call to Washington representative bankers, manufacturers and business men from all parts of the United States. These men will sit in on the proceedings and tell their side of the case.

Want Freight Rates Reduced. That the manufacturers will seek to secure a material reduction of freight rates, as the panacea for present depression and unemploy-ment, is authoritatively stated.

From 30 to 40 per cent reduction all along the line will result in an impetus to renewed production which will be immediately and widely noticeable, manufacturers representatives, who conferred with Secretary of Commerce Hoover Monday, declare.

Railroad authorities, however, are unalterably opposed to reduction of rates unless they can be assured that Congress will approve the $500.000.000 railroad refunding bill The manufacturers claim that reduction of rates will create a sentiment over the country that will over the country that will
